Amigos:

Amigos is a little slice of Mexican heaven on the upper Upper West Side. Although the name suggests an all-too-friendly atmosphere, the service was sub-par to say the least. The food was excellent, and if fish tacos are your thing, the Baja Fish taco was a nice change -- they fry the fish to give it a 'fish and chip' consistency, spread chipotle cream on top with citrus slaw and salsa, and the dish came with rice and beans ($15, 3 tacos). The music was a mix of popular reggaeton and slower tempo traditional songs, and the manager made sure to check on the guests every few minutes, which was a nice surprise. Atmosphere is chill and fun -- this is a great place for happy hour or a dinner stop before going out. -Kristyn Potter
